WINTER LAUNDRY WORK.

It is in hanging out the clothes in cold weather that heavy colds are often taken. The change of temoften taken. The change of temperature from the damy kitchen to the freezing air outside is most dangerous. No one should hang out clothes without being especially dressed for it. When there is a large family and consequently many stockings and undergarments it is sometimes expedient to have a separate day for their washing, and the regular laundry work is much sometimes expedient to have a separate day for their washing, and the regular laundry work is much easier when greese are out of the way. A still, frosty night does not hurt clothes but tends to whiten the fabric. Never take the hands out of hot suds and go out to the clothesline without first giving them a sour bath, either of lemon juice or vinegar; the latter is generally handier, and just as good as lemon nuce. Both are whitening, softening and corrective of the alkali with which strong soap is heavily charged. It is much better to use a co-ton clothesline and take it in every time you do the clothes. as wire clotheslines wear the clothes and in winter freeze to them so has they are easily torn. It is an invaluable help to have a good soap solution all ready for wash day, and one of the best is made by dissolving enough borax soap chips in hot water to make a thick solution, and a very little of this stirred in hot water making a nice soft lather that is excellent for washing the hot wa'er making a nice soft lather that is excellent for washing the knit underwear, stockings and all yarn things. All blankets and garments of outing flannel are kept soft and of good color by washing through this suds and it is especially good for all the nice soft covers good for all the nice soft covers and wraps and garments used for young children. The soap chip suds is much used for washing the white stockings worn so much by children, and by putting them to oak for several hours before washing they are easily washed clean nd kept a clear white. Luis J. Kuhl and wife returned Monday evening from Union City where they were the guests of Mr and Mrs. Lewis Mastin since Thursday. On Friday they at-tended a farm bureau meeting at Sherwood and enjoyed it very much. Some very enthusiastic speakers were present and gave very interesting talks on soil fertility and alfalfa and what it wil do for the farmer. Their talks do for the farmer. Their talks were made much more interesting by the use of motion pictures. The banquet which followed was excellent. On Saturday they accompanied Mr. Mastin's people to a meeting of Union Grange and there enjoyed a splendid time and also the dinner. A fine program was also given. There they met with Mr. George W. Gaw and wife, who were formerly in the Savings bank in Ypsilanti. Older residents will probably remember them. His wife probably remember them. His wife then Miss Smith, was also an employe of the bank. They wished Mr. Kuhl to present their compliments to their old friends and say that they were well and Mr. Gaw, who is a thorough business man, gave a very spirited address at the grange meeting about the farmer bloc in congress saying that we as farmers must get behind our men there and push un-til we get the representation that we need. Mr. Kuhl was requested to give a short talk on the farm bureau situation here in Ypsilantı which was much appreciated by those in the same work there.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Trowbridge, of Dearborn, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harrison, of Inkster, came Saturday and stayed over Sunday Saturday and stayed over to help little Eleanor Tro Trowbridge celebrate her ten'h birthday, Sun-day, Feb. 12 All enjoyed a very fine time

High Explosives.

The idea was one which ought to have suggested itself much sooner. The steam supply pipe for driving the big centrifugals at the shaft-mouth steaming even on the outside of its thick insulating jacket of asbestos under the wetting from the water jet, that had set me thinking.

A spinning twirl of the engine EVERBEARING STRAWBERRY throttle valve set our machinery in motion, and when I had thrown the the least-wet corner to watch the index. In the spring of 1920 Mr. Lubke, of the tell-tale steamgauge connected into the supply pipe.

We knew that the centrifugals were cked from them the same season voracious steam-eaters; we had proved "Tropia's less, in five miles away and that when we were running them in the week-long test. I had a notion aced prices for immediate orders, that maybe Bullerton had fired only weather."

B. Wright, of Ypsilanti, has one of the battery of three boilers to "What run his shower-bath machine, and the result speedily confirmed this assumption. In a few minutes the steam pressure had dropped to a point at which it would no longer drive any of the pumps, either ours or the one outside, and the window cataract stopped.

Before I fairly realized what he was fortress and saw a man dodging among going to do, he had taken one of the the pines back of the house. When I hiding place and was splitting the fuse at the place I pointed out to him and with his pocketknife.

"Open that there door into the shop," heap of scrap half hypnotized me, I guess, for I stood gaping at it, with rifle fire stopped with the coming of the door held open, until Daddy Hiram jerked me away, slammed the door and yelled to me to help him bar it.

scrap had torn in the door, we could see what we had done. It was a-plenand if I could get a stick of dynamice ty. The blacksmith shop had disappeared, leaving nothing but a scattering of wreckage. The heavy anvil had been thrown from its block and the forge looked as if a giant had kicked it. Out by the boiler-shed a rack of cordwood had been toppled over and under it a man was struggling to free himself. When he saw the imprisoned enemy that mild-mannered, soft-spoken old soldier that I was shut up with would have opened the door and shot the struggler if I hadn't stopped him.

This blowing up of the shop settled the shower-bath business for us definitely. With the impediment out of the way we had a clear view on this third side; could command the row of miners' cabins, as well as the boilers in their open shed. When I got through persuading Daddy Hiram that we couldn't afford to murder the wounded, the fellow who had been wrestling with the woodpile had made his exit and there was nobody in sight. Shortly afterward a bullet, fired from somewhere in the forest background, whanged upon our roof, and there were several to follow; but aside from punching a few more holes in the iron they did no harm.

"Looks like the 'Hercules' is the one thing they're most skeered of," said Daddy, with his queer little stuttering chuckle. "Now maybe they'll leave us have time to get ourselves dried out a mite."

Totting up the results of the showerbath we'd had, a bread famine promised to be the worst of them. The few cans of beans, tomatoes and peaches -the campers' standbys-were unhurt, of course, and the muddied bacon could be washed with water drawn from the flooded shaft. But the flour in its sack was merely a blob of paste and was beyond redemption and the cornmeal was the same. In view of the results I wondered if Bullerton hadn't shrewdly calculated upon washing our commissary out of existence when he planned his overgrown lawnhim credit for more ingenuity than he really had.

Through what remained of the afternoon the rifle firing continued, coming sometimes from one angle and sometimes from another, but always cannily from a safe distance and always under cover of the surrounding forest. Daddy Hiram, grimly optimistic, extracted a swallow or so of encouragement out of the persistent pot-shoot-

"Dunno as you've ever noticed it, pump clutch in, we crouched again in Stannie, but if you'll only let a hog alone long enough he'll shove himself under the bob-wire fence far enough to get caught," he said. "Charley Bullerton, now; he's plum' forgot that that sound carries mighty long distances in these mountains in clear

SCHWAB SAYS TARIFF POLICY IS HURTFUL

Calls for a Law That Will Protect the American Worker from Low Wages of Other Nations

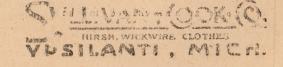

Washington-At the morning session of the special tariff convention under the auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers a letter was read from Charles M. Schwab. chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in which he said: "Today we are confronted with a basic weakness in our tariff policy which is affecting, injuriously, the whole industrial fabric of the nation. Fluctuations in foreign exchange are playing havoc with wages, prices and orders, because our present tariff laws were framed at a time when foreign moneys were normal; they are today actually inoperative as far as protecting labor and industry or yielding revenue are concerned,

"Two examples will suffice to illustrate and prove these statements.

"An ounce of gold today in the United States pays the American worker for 17.22 hours of labor as against 50.16 hours in Great Britain, 95.5 hours in Japan, 117.31 hours in France, and 201.55 hours in Germany. Last year Congress passed a bill restricting immigration to protect the American worker from the millions of foreigners who would have flooded our labor markets and caused a panic in wages. But what advantage is there today to the American worker to have restricted immigration, if, through defects in our tariff, the products of these millions of men and women abroad are now glutting our markets and forcing millions of workers out of their positions? What better employment insurance could we have than a tariff law which insures the American worker his job in competition with the workmen of the world?

"In 1915 it required the work of 5.000 men for one day to make 1.000 tons of steel rails. Let us suppose that today an American railroad placed an order for 50,000 tons of rails in Belgium, Germany or England, because these rails might be bought for less money abroad than at home. This would mean that five thousand men in our own country would be idle for fifty days. It would mean that several thousand employes of our railroads would have less work, because the railroads would be deprived of hauling these rails, and the raw materials, such as coal, coke, iron, etc., which comes from the mines to the mills. It would mean that thousands of miners would have less work if the product of their labor would not be used by the mills. It would mean that the workers of the mines, mills and railroads would have less money to spend for the necessities of life with the baker, the grocer, or the retailer. This tendency to buy abroad at the expense of our own country is short sighted economy."
